Is the air purity in your home under control?

The air you breathe inside your home could be the most polluted air you breathe all day.

In fact, the EPA has named indoor air pollution as one of the top five environmental risks to public health. With the amount of time spent indoors, it's no wonder so many people suffer from allergies, asthma and other illnesses.

Aprilaire® can help you control the particles that are harming your home and your family.

Here's what's happening in the air you're breathing right now:

- + Just one cubic foot of air can have more than 30 million pollutants—that's 100 times more than the air outside. Polluted air like this causes 94% of all respiratory problems.*

- + The dust you see on your furniture or floating in front of the window on a sunny day is also entering your lungs. Just one ounce of dust can contain 40,000 dust mites, which aggravate allergy and asthma symptoms.*

- + In addition to visible contaminants, there's an alarming concentration of harmful particles that are invisible to the human eye. Particulate matter like this is the leading cause of poor indoor air, and it's found in 85% of homes.*

- + Every time you dust or vacuum, you actually increase particulate concentration in the air.

- + It's not just your family that suffers. Polluted air can also have a damaging effect on your furniture, appliances and electronics, and especially your heating and cooling system.

Indoor air pollution is a problem in almost every home—including yours.
